Future Continuous

Pros

- 1 Working flexibly. You can take time off whenever you need to take care of personal stuff, see friends and take the dog for a walk!
- 2 Being more productive. Fewer meetings and workplace chats mean it's easier to concentrate, so you can be more efficient.
- 3 Saving money. You don't need to pay for train tickets or buy lunch in cafés or restaurants.

Cons

- 1 Working more. No separation between work and home means you may end up doing overtime and working too much.
- 2 Feeling bored. You can feel lonely and fed-up, and miss the company of your colleagues.
- 3 Being less productive. It's easy to put off work by doing housework or making lunch, so you may work less and fall behind.

4.1 Vocabulary Work and jobs

- 1 What do you think are the advantages and disadvantages of working from home?
- 2 Read the text above. Does it mention any of your ideas from Exercise 1?

- 4 I KNOW! In pairs, add more jobs to Vocabulary box A. Say which are easy to do from home.
- 5 In pairs, take it in turns to describe a job from Vocabulary box A for your partner to guess.
I help people understand each other when they don't speak the same language.

- 6 Read the emails. What work is Jenny doing now? What's her new job?

Hey, Sandra,
Did you hear about Jenny? She quit her job as a lab assistant. She didn't feel part of the team in that company and she had no chance of getting a promotion there. For now, she's doing some voluntary work as a shop assistant in a charity shop, but she's applied for lots of jobs and sent off over twenty CVs. She has two interviews tomorrow, one for a job as a translator and another as an app developer. I hope she gets one of them.
Cheers,
Mark

Sandra,
Good news! Jenny got the job in the translation agency! She's going to the office tomorrow to sign the contract and to meet her new colleagues. She isn't going to earn a high salary, but she can work from home and she's just happy she's not unemployed anymore.
See you soon,
Mark

- 7 4.2 WORD FRIENDS Find these phrases in the emails in Exercise 6 and write the missing words. Listen and check.

- 11 Choose the correct option.

Hi Ellie,
I've got a new job working full-time for a translation agency! I'm the newest member of ¹staff / work. It's a(n) ²overtime / temporary contract for now – just six months, but I'm really happy here. We have flexible ³permanent / working hours, so I can work from home three days a week. When we have a big job on, we have to do some ⁴overtime / rate, but I don't mind. Firstly, because the hourly ⁵rate / rise is higher when you work extra hours and secondly, because I love the work. Translating is fun. It's not ⁶badly-paid / well-paid either. The money's a lot better than it was in my old job. And my boss says I'll get a ⁷pay / voluntary rise soon. There are quite generous paid ⁸holidays / wages, too.
So let's start planning our trip in August!
Love,
Jenny

- 1 What are the advantages and disadvantages of an open-air cinema? Do you think it would be fun to work in one?

- 2 4.4 Read the email. What is Paolo's plan for the summer?

Hi, Matt!

What are you going to do in the summer? I'm going to Italy. My uncle is starting a new business this summer. It's an open-air cinema and I'm going to work there (I'll send you a photo of the cinema later). My uncle lives next to the sea and I'm not going to work in the morning, so I'll be able to go swimming every day before lunch. I'll probably spend my mornings on the beach with my cousins and then I'll work with my uncle in the evenings. It's going to be great.

My flight leaves the day after we finish school and I fly back to the UK on 30 August. You'll have to come and visit me before then. I'm going to miss hanging out with my friends, but I'm sure I won't miss the British weather!

Bye for now,
Paolo

YOUR WORLD

Training for work with virtual reality

Today more and more people are improving their professional skills thanks to virtual reality (VR). The companies that provide virtual training say it's faster, safer and cheaper than traditional training. It gives trainees practical experience. They can work in teams or independently. And they can learn without worrying about making expensive mistakes. We spoke to three virtual reality trainees.

A Fearne, 25, trainee surgeon

'Virtual reality is a valuable tool for the medical profession. I'm a qualified doctor, but I'm training to be a specialist in sporting injuries. Yesterday I took part in a training workshop. I operated on a knee without using a real body. It felt just like the real thing. While we were working on our virtual patients, we were getting feedback from the professor. On the screen, you can see what you've done, what to do next and how well you're doing. It seems that VR training produces better surgeons. In one study, VR trainees' scores were 230 percent higher than those of traditionally trained students.'

B Sean, 20, construction worker

'Virtual training's a great way to gain work experience. It's like playing video games, which is cool because I think you learn better when you're enjoying yourself. It's so real. You totally feel as if you're six floors up on a building site. This week we've been learning how to avoid dangerous situations like falling off a high building. That's really important because there are a lot of workplace accidents in the construction industry. I've done a few training courses, but this is the best I've ever done. I'm sure this qualification will help me get a good job.'

C Dylan, 21, computer programmer

'My job's OK. I recently got a promotion. But it's not what I want to do. I want to be a pilot. The problem is flying lessons are expensive. So, when I heard there was a vacancy on a VR training course for pilots at my local college, I applied and I was lucky enough to be accepted. I'm so happy to have got an opportunity to fly. It's not exactly like the real thing, but it's pretty good. And, of course, it's totally safe. The other day I crashed when I was landing at the airport, and nobody got hurt.'

- 1 Look at the picture in the blog post. Which jobs do you think robots will take over in the next few years?

I think we'll have robot cleaners in a few years' time.

In Ten Years' Time

I recently saw a documentary about the future. It predicted that in ten years' time, robots and computers will be doing almost all of today's jobs. That got me thinking about my life. So here are a few of my predictions.

- This time next year I'll be speaking with a Scottish accent. (I'm going to study in Edinburgh, the Scottish capital!)
- In five years' time, I'll be celebrating the end of my university studies.
- In ten years I'll be earning a fortune. I'll be working as an app developer.
- I won't be living in Bedford. I'll be living somewhere exciting like London or Paris.
- I won't be doing any housework. My personal robot will be doing it all for me.

What about you? What will you be doing in five years? Where will you be living? Will you be working in ten years' time or will you be watching robots do your job? Send in your comments now!

- 2 4.8 Read the blog post and mark the sentences T (true) or F (false).

- Check grammar: have you used future tenses correctly?

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am writing in response to your advertisement. I am interested in applying for the job of summer receptionist at the Arts Centre. I am currently in my final year at high school, and I will be studying Art at college from September. Therefore, I am very keen to gain work experience.

Regarding the post of receptionist, I have some experience in dealing with customers at a local shop, where I worked on Saturday mornings. In addition, I think I would be suitable for the position because I am a good speaker and very sociable. I am a frequent visitor to the Arts Centre, and I am working on a school project about your recent Kandinsky exhibition. I will be able to work at weekends this summer.

Thank you for taking the time to read my application. I hope you will consider me for the post. I am available for an interview at any time.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours faithfully,
Rohan Patel
